It's hard for me to really get seduced by a white-walled, starkly lit, sterile art gallery. Though the art on the walls might be enticing, I find the experience too disconnected from how the art might look in my home. At Gibson, artwork mingles with found objects, vintage furniture and a variety of unexpected items. Aha! This is what I'm talking about. Here I can get the sense of how pieces would work in my world. I liked Gibson so much, I wondered if I could move in. Seems that's not an option, but I can use the design services of the folks here to help me recreate my own Gibson feel at home.
